Miss Lily Dougherty gave two recitations, one fitting the subject now in the public mind, "Give Us a Place to Play." The address was made by Rev. F. H. Brunstetter, pastor of the Methodist Church, on "Balance Church with Schools," and presented the problem of home, state, church and school in an alliance to insert goodness as well as ability into the lives of children in order to preserve the proper balance of life. Early this week the Liberty Loan Committee for Adams County District One, around Gettysburg received word of its quota being $1,300,000 of the Victory bond, and District Two, around Littlestown $351,000. Three will be given to each chairman of a city or town in the district, and he is to award one a week to the person who secures the greatest number of subscriptions in that week in his community. The helmets were captured by American fighting men as they entered Coblenz, and they had been stored there, it was announced, for use by the German army in the triumphal march into Paris. In addition, flags will be awarded to the business enterprises and to communities who continue to maintain the fine records that were set in the four other drives.

Bids for Camp Colt Opened.

Bids for Camp Colt were opened at Washington on Tuesday. Bids were opened at the same time for the purchase of twelve other camps. Eight bids were received for Camp Colt and two were marked informal. The specifications were somewhat complicated, requiring bidders to pay all the damages of the land owners by reason of the occupation of the land by the United States. The bid of John M. Warner only covered 18 acres owned by him and occupied by the government.

The five bids submitted with prices were as follows:

John W. Hartley, York	$120,000
Jump House Wrecking Co., Phila.	202,300
David Hauser, N. Y. City	658,500
Thomas & Co., Frederick Md.	750,000
Lewis Bros., Rock Island Ill.	1,000,000

The last named bid as the high bid is the one likely to be accepted, and it is looked upon as a high figure for the 374 buildings and over 40,000 feet of pipe and other material for to this cost must be added the tearing down and removal of buildings not sold intact, and also the damages to be paid to the land owners, which have been estimated to be higher than any bid that would be made.

New Building for Hoffman Orphanage.

The "Adams County Independent," of Littlestown, in its last issue states that the congregation of Emmanuel Reformed Church of Hanover, has raised $15,000 for new dormitory building at the Hoffman Orphanage in Mt. Joy township. The funds were collected in a two weeks' drive with the goal set for $13,000. The institution has been in great need of a new building with a large waiting list of children who will be received as soon as there are quarters for them. In addition to the money in cash and pledges, one member agreed to furnish the hardware for the new building and another will furnish a room. The congregation recently presented the Orphanage with a sliding board for the playground and four swings have also been ordered.

How Much is 1¢

Suppose that for one cent you could insure the quality of your cake, biscuits, etc., wouldn't that be real economy?

Well, one cent is about the difference in the cost of a whole cake or a pan of biscuits made with Royal Baking Powder as compared with cheaper baking powders made from alum or phosphate—a trifle, indeed, to insure the quality and wholesomeness of your baking.

RAGS WANTED

ALL IN ONE GREAT FAMILY

Hindus Draw Relationship Close, Knowing No Word as Cold as "Cousins."

All able-bodied members of the Hindu family must contribute their labor and earnings, whether of personal skill or agriculture and trade, to the common stock, writes Bhupendranath Basu. Weaker members, widows, orphans, and destitute relations, all must be maintained and supported; sons, nephews, brothers, cousins, all must be treated equally, for any undue preference is apt to break up the family.

We have no word for cousins—they are either brothers or sisters—we do not know what are cousins two degrees removed. The children of the first cousin are young nephews and nieces just the same as the children of young brothers or sisters. The family affections, the family ties, are always very strong, and therefore the maintenance of an equal standing among so many members is not so difficult as it may appear at first.

Moreover, life is very simple. Until recently shoes were not in general use at home, but sandals without any leather fastenings. I have known of a well-to-do middle class family of several brothers and cousins who had two or three pairs of shoes between them, these shoes being only used when they had occasion to go out, and the same practice is still followed in the case of more expensive garments, like shawls, which last for generations, and with their age are treated with loving care, as having been used by ancestors of reverend memory.

The joint family remains together sometimes for several generations until it becomes too unwieldy, when it breaks up into smaller families, and you thus see whole villages peopled by members of the same clan.

SET EXAMPLE IN COURTESY

Venetians Were the First to Put Before World the Nobleness of Gentle Manners.

Pompeo Molmenti, the historian, relates that in the sixteenth century the gentle manners of the Venetian people were evident in every department of daily life, even down to the greetings in the street. The very nobles in the Seicento, the period of greatest hauteur, were wont to salute courteously by raising their cap with the left hand and laying the right on the heart. The populace was always obsequious, especially toward patricians and foreigners, and to every question addressed to them would never answer brusquely, "Yes," but always, "At your service," though this humility of expression implied not so much servility as an inherent courtesy of feeling. The penalties for blasphemy were exceptionally severe. For instance, Benigna, in his memoirs, writes, under June 23, 1724: "A certain Bertelli for having used foul oaths was placed in the pillory and had his tongue cut out." Yet, ceremony in Venice was never allowed to degenerate into ridiculous etiquette. As early as the close of the sixteenth century a resolution was passed forbidding the use of glowing expressions in salutations.

Skating Has Patron Saint.

Skating is the only sport that can boast a patron saint. Her name was Lydwina, and she sponsored skating back in the fourteenth century. Her home town was Schiedam, in Holland. Her family name was ancient and honorable, and her father followed the honorable profession of night watchman. Nevertheless, Thomas a Kempis, among other names, found her interesting, for he met her and wrote the details of her life for all to read. Lydwina was fifteen when some boisterous girl friends dragged her out against her will to skate on the frozen canal. No sooner had they started on their holiday excursion than one of them bumped into poor little Lydwina—and jammed a perfectly good rib. That put her out of the running for all time, it seems, and as she lay on her couch of pain she was comforted by strange visions, and before her death in 1433, it is claimed, wrought several miracles through her piety.

Old-Time Skating Clubs.

As early as 1742 skating clubs were formed in Scotland. The first American club was established in Philadelphia in 1849, and quickly attained the prominence it still holds for artistic performance. Due to the efforts of this club the skate came into its own, for in 1850 Philadelphia brought to bear the skill of the surgical instrument maker to produce the modern steel blade and foot plate.

The Boston arena—until its destruction by fire some time ago—held first place among the world's rinks as possessing the largest indoor skating area in the world. This record has now probably passed to Prince's Skating club in London. The building itself is as solid and enduring as most British institutions, and the walls in the rink proper are adorned with splendid friezes of winter scenes.

Rare Forethought.

"Yus, mum," said Meandering Marmaduke, "I was a very precocious child, mum. Why, would yer believe it, I began to smoke when I was only six years old."

"Why, you degenerate brute!" exclaimed the horrified old lady. "Why did you do that?"

"Well, yer see, mum, by the time I was old enough to shave I had saved up enough coppers for a razor."

FUEL SUPPLY OF FUTURE ON FARM

Many Communities Finding It Necessary to Go Farther Back for Their Wood.

SHOULD PROVIDE WOODLANDS

Not Desirable to Use Good Agricultural Lands, as Inferior Spots Will Grow Sufficient Amount for Each Year's Needs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Communities in wooded regions should not depend on the chance growth of wood for their future fuel supply. Already many communities, especially in the Northeast, are finding it necessary each year to go farther and farther back for their wood, or to cut smaller trees each succeeding year, because the available supply of standing wood is too small to allow the trees to grow to the proper size before they are cut.

Must Provide Woodlands.

The time will come—and soon in some regions, the foresters say—when it will be necessary to set aside areas to produce wood, and to manage them for maximum wood production in the shortest possible time. It is not desirable to devote good agricultural land to this purpose; generally the inferior land on farms will grow sufficient fuel to supply regularly each year's needs. Farms with such land are numerous in the hilly sections of the country, and are found almost everywhere except in the prairie and plains regions and in limited areas in the river bottoms.

Meanwhile, the least that should be done is to see that fire and other destructive agents are kept out of growing woodland, and that in cutting for firewood only the material taken out which will not injure the productive capacity of the remaining stand. Advice on these matters will be given by the various state forestry departments or by the forest service of the United States department of agriculture.

Municipal Forests Needed.

Acute need for fuel in emergencies furnishes one of the strongest arguments for cities or towns maintaining municipal forests in available wooded districts. These emergencies may be expected periodically, and municipal forests serving as parks and pleasure grounds or as protection to water supplies can come into play as fuel reserves in time of stress when coal can not be obtained in sufficient quantities. The foresters recommend the point to the thoughtful consideration of every community which has suitable adjacent woodland.

Some towns already own such tracts, and eventually many of these forests are expected to be in the older settled sections of the country when it is found how easily they are handled and how advantageous they are in many respects. Instead of being sources of expense, well-managed woodlands should quickly become sources of considerable revenue to the communities owning them.

BUTTERMILK GOOD FOR PIGS

Gives Practically Same Results as Skim Milk—Chemical Analysis Shows Little Difference.

Careful experiments show that buttermilk gives practically the same feeding results with pigs as skim milk and as a matter of fact, its chemical analysis shows very little difference from skim milk so they can be considered equal and the equivalent of each other when fed under similar conditions.

PASTURE NEEDED BY SHEEP

Nothing Will Take Place of It for Lambs—Exercise and Green Feed Necessary.

Pasture is necessary for economical sheep raising. The lambs will need exercise and green feed and nothing will take the place of the pasture for them. If the permanent pasture is not sufficient grazing crops may be needed.

BALM FOR THE DISHWASHER

According to Writer, Happy is the Man Allowed to Help in Cleansing the Table Utensils.

We have never held with those who think dishwashing a dreary and sordid task, according to Collier's. Give us plenty of hot water, plenty of some abrasive soap and a couple of clean cloths and we will tackle the job of the evening meal with keen enjoyment. After a long day at the office it is delightful to steep one's hands in hot dishwater (which acts as an excellent massage for the brain and a tonic for weariness of the body) and pass through the purifying and homely gestures of ablution and wiping. These simple tasks of the hand always induce a pleasant and domestic train of thought. We know one poet, and not such a bad poet either, who always says he can write his best lyrics after a bout with the evening dishes. And no man—artist ever gives so pink and charming a glow to the hands as a half-hour with the dishpan.

How many husbands, we wonder, have learned the first rule of the dishwasher's technique? You must have plenty of hot water, but always use cold water on any utensils where eggs have been broken. Heat hardens the yolk, and boiling water poured upon an egg-smeared plate will so solidify and solder the pieces that it will take sandpaper to remove them.

If any husband should ever protest against being asked to wash the dishes let his wife refer him to II Kings, 21:13.

AVENGED HIS POISONED PET

Mean Way in Which Owner of Raucous Cat Got Even With Its Executioner.

A member of a certain national organization was laughing over certain attacks on the institution.

"These attacks," he said, "are clever—clever but crooked. They bring a story to my mind."

"A man owned a big black cat that used to sneak off to the butcher's and steal meat. The butcher warned the man to keep his thieving cat at home, but no attention was paid to the warning, and so finally the butcher declared:

"If that pesky cat steals any more of my stock I'll poison it."

"Well, a few days later the cat made off with a leg of lamb, and the butcher, true to his word, sprinkled bits of poisoned steak about. The next morning the black cat lay cold and stiff before its master's door.

"The cat's owner waited till the butcher shop was crowded with sausage buyers. Then he tucked the corpse under his arm and strode in through the crowd.

"Here you are, John," he said, slamming the dead cat down on the meat block, beside the sausage machine. "Here you are. That makes 75. I'll fetch in the 22 others in the course of the day."

Restoring Mesopotamia.

Under British occupation the fertile regions of Mesopotamia are being restored to productivity, for which this region was celebrated in Biblical days. This is disclosed in official dispatches received at Washington from Baghdad. Under Turkish rule in some places nothing was produced.

The British authorities, to save a large part of the population from starvation and to provide work, immediately set about, as soon as the Turks were driven out, to construct canals for irrigation and to encourage the population to plan for the next harvest. An Arabian labor corps was organized locally and three Indian labor corps were employed.

As a result a new irrigation canal has been opened at Mansarich, seventy miles northeast of Baghdad on the Djalal river, by which 300,000 acres already are being irrigated.

The King Charles Statue.

King Charles I may now breathe freely once more. Workmen have taken away the sandbags and scaffolding of the statue of King Charles I in Trafalgar square. This is the first time the head of the Stuarts has been permitted to breathe freely for many months. All sorts of speculations have been rife as to the reason for the extensive protection that has been accorded this statue, one of them being that there was a Jacobite at the office of works. The probable reason, however, is the undeniable beauty of the statue.—London Mail.

Identification No. 1.

When a soldier gets his identification disk handed to him and it runs up to 317,541 or 2,783,500—or some such colossal number, he begins to meditate briefly on the subject of who has No. 1.

The Stars and Stripes answers his query with the information that in the infancy of the A. E. F., No. 1 was assigned to Sgt. Arthur B. Crenn of the medical department. Where and what he is now is not vouchsafed, but by this time he may be a lieutenant colonel.

Another Star Shell.

By the invention of a new "star" shell the night fighting efficiency of the navy will be increased at least 25 per cent, the war department has said in an official statement. The shell is suitable for guns of from three to five-inch caliber. Its value lies in the fact that its increased illuminating power may be used without betraying the position of the craft using it.—Navy Life Magazine.

Road News.

E. B. Bennett and H. H. Bennett, of the firm of M. Bennett & Sons, of Indiana, were in Gettysburg on Monday. They are the successful bidders for the cement road to be built in Straban township, over seven miles of the Harrisburg State road. A large quantity of machinery is being shipped here and work is expected to start in ten days.

The County Commissioners have been notified by State Highway Commissioner Sadler to secure release of damages from abutting property owner, that being the duty under the Act of County Commissioners and will receive immediate attention.

The State Highway Department announces that since 1914 there has been eliminated 364 miles of toll roads with toll gates, at a cost of $1,321,119.57. Among the roads so eliminated are the following in Adams county: Gettysburg and Petersburg Turnpike on Oct. 21, 1914, at $23,064.23; 22 1-2 miles in Adams county: Chambersburg Turnpike on Oct. 26, 1914, 3 miles in Adams county for $9,891.89; York and Gettysburg Turnpike April 16, 1918, York and Adams counties, 10 miles for $96,009.75; Waynesboro, Greencastle and Mercersburg Turnpike on Nov. 26, 1918, 3 miles in Adams county for $47,092.25.

The Highway Department has a half million dollars available to buy turnpikes and with the help of the counties expects to put out of business all other toll roads within the next two years.

Adams county is credited with having but 12 1-2 miles of the 178 miles remaining turnpike, but there must be some mistake in the figures of this county. The total in Adams county is about 31 miles, 15 miles of the old Hanover and Carlisle turnpike from Cumberland county line to York Springs to York county line near Hanover and the worst road in places in the county and with about the price of the bridge over Conewago Creek. Then there is something over 3 miles of pike between Abbottstown and East Berlin and about 4 miles of the turnpike from Abbottstown to Hanover, and about 6 miles of the pike from Hanover to Littlestown and about 1 mile from McSherry's to Hanover and at least 2 miles more of the Waynesboro, Greencastle and Mercersburg pike.

From Maryland comes the good news of the building of a concrete road from Westminster to Pennsylvania line, about 10 1-2 miles over the Baltimore pike at a cost of $187,000. With the building of this section there will be first class roadways from Gettysburg to Baltimore. It is said the road from Gettysburg to Littlestown and Maryland line is one of the primary roads to be rebuilt of cement by the State Highway under our recent big bond issue.

The state appropriations to the Abbottstown High School received last week amounted to $266.00.

George K. Metzger sold his property in Abbottstown last Friday to John Brady for $1000.

TO A LING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Gettysburg.

No woman should consider herself healthy and well if the kidneys are weak. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are disordered. If the kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen worse troubles may quickly follow. This is often the cause of bearing-down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uric poisoning is also frequent cause of headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that has proven effective in thousands of such cases. Let a Gettysburg woman tell of her experience.

Mrs. John L. Menchey, 46 Breckenridge St., says: "Several times in the past I suffered with backache and dizzy headaches. My kidneys acted irregularly, and bothered me greatly. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Store and they gave me such good benefit I haven't found it necessary to use a kidney remedy in a long time."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Menchey had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

ORCHARD TOPICS

STRAWBERRY EASY TO GROW

Like Other Crops, the Greater Cultural Care They Receive the Greater the Yield.

During the last two years the food situation was such that nearly all of the efforts of the farmers and gardeners were directed in such a way that the maximum amount of food could be produced. Along horticultural lines during this period the production of fruit has been so sidetracked that there has been a decided shortage of fruit and particularly that of small fruit.

Several times the amount of strawberries that we produce could be consumed by our own people if the supply was available. Every farm that will grow corn is capable of producing strawberries. In view of the fact that the food situation now is not nearly so acute as it was, we are warranted in urging people to plant strawberry beds for home use, as well as for commercial purposes.

The strawberry business is beyond the experimental stage. Senator Dunlap, Warfield, Biederwood, as well as many other varieties, can be successfully grown in almost any state. Unlike any other fruit, a full crop can be secured one year after the plants are set out. Other small fruits, like raspberries and currants, require two to three years to reach maturity, while the apple requires eight to fifteen years to come into a period of full bearing.

Strawberries are easy to grow, but like other crops, the greater the cultural care they receive, the greater will be the yield. A few rows running across the average farm garden will produce all a family can use. An acre of well-tilled strawberries will yield anywhere from a few thousand up to 6,000 or 8,000 quarts in one season.

Iowa has been decidedly short on fruit the past few years, and long on other food products. None of the berries shipped in from the large producing districts can compare with the home-grown product. At 20 to 30 cents a quart, the price that prevailed the last two years, the per capita consumption is small, but with a supply available in the gardens the per capita consumption will depend only on the capacity of the family.

The plant diseases and insects that work on the strawberries as a rule are not serious. The crop is as certain as any that we grow. The middle West, and particularly Iowa, is in need of thousands of farmers and gardeners who will plant new beds this spring.

IDEAL FARM HOME ORCHARD

It Should Contain Several Kinds of Fruit of Varieties Ripening One After Another.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The ideal home orchard should contain several kinds of fruit, represented in many cases by a considerable number of varieties ripening one after another over a long period. Large yields, good shipping quality and attractiveness in appearance all may be made secondary to high dessert quality or special excellence for cooking purposes.

APPLE KING OF ALL FRUITS

Crop of 1918 Had Value of $230,000,000, or Three-Eighths of Value of All Fruits.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The apple is the king of fruits in value of crop as well as in the estimation of apple lovers. For the apple crop of 1918 a value of $230,000,000 has been estimated, or nearly three-eighths of the value of all fruits.

TOILED HARD FOR SUCCESS

Great Sculptor Knew Many Vicissitudes Before His Genius Compelled World's Acknowledgment.

The old, old story of genius toiling against adversity and winning the struggle is ever repeating itself—and is ever interesting. Rodin, the great French sculptor, climbed the ladder laboriously, but with such a persistence that fame could not escape him. In "Rodin, the Man and His Art," Miss Judith Cladel tells how the young artist, in order to live, applied himself to varied occupations.

He chipped at stone and marble, he drew sketches for the fashionable jewelers of Paris, and he made articles of decorative art ordered by manufacturers. Despite a considerable loss of time he obtained by that means a true apprenticeship in art, and finally was able to realize his first dream—to have an atelier of his own.

His atelier! It was a stable in the Rue Lebrun, in the quarter of the Gobelins, where he was born. It was a cold hovel-cave, with a well sunk in the angle of the wall that, at every season, exhaled its chilling breath. It did not matter. The place was sufficiently large and well lighted.

There Rodin accumulated his studies and works until the place became so crowded that he could hardly turn himself about, but, being too poor to have them cast, he lost the greater part of them. Sometimes the soft clay settled and fell asunder; sometimes, becoming too dry, it cracked and crumbled.—Youth's Companion.

NEVER WORE ROYAL DIADEM

Seven Queens of England Who Remained Uncrowned on Account of State and Religious Reasons.

There have been seven uncrowned queens of England. The first was Margaret of France, the second wife of Edward I. Money was scarce in the government coffers at the time, and Edward could not afford the expense of a coronation. The four later wives of Henry VIII, Anne Boleyn's successors—Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Catherine Howard and Catherine Parr—were never publicly crowned as queen consorts. Perhaps it was because Henry thought it would cause ridicule to have coronations occur as frequently as his marriages. Henrietta Maria, the wife of Charles I, being a strict Catholic, refused to take part in a state function which would compel her to partake of the sacrament according to the rites of the Church of England. Sophia Dorothea, the wife of George I, and mother of George II, was never recognized as queen of England, and therefore cannot be classed as one of Britain's uncrowned queens. Caroline of Brunswick, the wife of George IV, was not permitted to be present in Westminster hall at his coronation.

Lone Tree of 1849.

There was an immense cottonwood, four feet thick and very tall, which stood in Nebraska almost in the center of the continent, half-way between New York and San Francisco, which was within one mile of that center. Under its branches rested thousands of forty-niners en route to the Eldorado of the Pacific coast. It was the best known camping ground on the old California trail. From 1849, when the gold seekers rushed across the great plains down to the completion of the Union Pacific railway, the great tree was a guidepost to the wagon trains going West.

After the railway was completed there was no further use for the old tree and it eventually rotted away and died. In 1910 a monument was erected on the spot that the tree had occupied. It represents the trunk of a giant cottonwood and bears this inscription: "On this spot stood the original Lone Tree on the old California trail."

Remarkable Women Rulers.

Remarkable in many ways was Elizabeth Petrovna, empress of Russia, and daughter of Peter the Great. She died 157 years ago, after a reign of 20 years. While history knows her chiefly for her immorality, she left behind her monuments to her better nature, the University of Moscow and the Academy of Fine Arts in Petrograd. Empress Elizabeth's mother was the Empress Catherine, who had been the wife of a Swedish dragon, and became the mistress of several men before Peter the Great married her. Her daughter, Elizabeth Petrovna, when she ruled Russia, once became so mortified by one of the jests of Frederick the Great that she made war on the witty Prussian king, and until her death Russia was one of his most dangerous enemies.

Ant's Sweet Tooth.

One of the greatest pests that haunt our orange groves is the Argentine ant, and yet it never goes near the trees. Every bit of the damage it does indirectly. It seems that it has a very sweet tooth and is abnormally fond of a honey dew that is secreted by certain mealy bugs and scales that are most injurious, and it will go to any lengths to protect them from being destroyed or harmed in any way.

In Louisiana they have discovered a way of trapping these ants. They construct nests and when they all congregate there, as they will in rainy weather, they can destroy them.

In California they poison them with poison syrup. When they are once gone it is easy enough to deal with their friends.

DEVICE TO FRIGHTEN BIRDS

Cheap and Efficient Method Illustrated and Described to Keep Little Songsters Away.

I have found a cheap and efficient method of frightening birds from fruit, berries and ripened grain. Robins and many other song birds used to spoil from 50 to 60 per cent of my strawberries and cherries, while sparrows came in clouds upon my wheat, writes F. E. Brimmer in Farm and Home.

The device consists of a bell-ringing windmill. As the mill need turn slowly (20 times a minute is enough), I used but two fans. These are 10 inches wide by 12 inches long. The bell arms are 16 inches long and the ends each hold a bell which is four inches in diameter. These are exactly alike so that they will balance, being common hand bells with handle removed and the arm that fastens them to the windmill inserted in place of handle.

To support the windmill I used a base piece, pivoted to the top of vertical post, that is eight inches wide by two feet long. Two upright posts, attached to either end of the base, are bored to take the shaft which carries the windmill. These posts are 20 inches apart and the shaft is a rod two feet long. A vane to keep the windmill headed toward the wind, attached to the rear of the base completes the bell-ringing windmill.

PRUNE APPLE FOR LOW HEAD

Open Center Will Admit Filtered Sunlight From Above—Paint All Large Wounds.

In pruning apple trees one should aim to secure a low, broad spreading head (a branching system) with open center to admit filtered sunlight from above. Three to five main lower limbs should be secured as an outward spreading framework for the tree. Most of the pruning, however, should be done toward the top, rather than cutting off essential lower limbs beneath. High growing branches toward the center may be cut back to outward growing side limbs. This tends to secure a broad, low spread of limbs rather than allowing the trees to get too high in the center. It also admits sunlight from above. This will enable fruiting spurs and fruit to develop throughout the body of the tree. If the tree is allowed to make too much tall central twig growth it will shade out fruiting branches in the body of the tree so they cannot bear.

This method is recommended by the University of Missouri college of agriculture. The following points also should be observed:

If the trees are old and have a large number of main limbs crowding each other badly they should be thinned out.

Pruning may be done whenever the wood is not frozen throughout the winter. If necessary, judicious additional pruning may be done in spring and early summer up to the middle of July.

In pruning, cut all branches close so as to leave no knot. A knot cannot heal over. A close cut wound allows the surrounding growing layer to quickly close over the wound.

Paint all larger pruning wounds with common house paint or with a good pruning compound, such as is sent out by the leading paint companies. Dead, cankered areas on the sides of the trunk or main limbs should be cleaned out. Scrape the dead surface clean with a tree scraper out to the surrounding rim of healthy growth. Paint over these cankered wounds with paint and disinfectant. For a quart of paint or pruning compound, dissolve a teaspoonful of corrosive sublimate in turpentine (about 1 oz.). When stirred until dissolved in the turpentine mix this disinfectant into the paint and stir well. It will keep canker from spreading or setting into the wounds.

Pruning should be done with a sharp pruning saw, which will make a clean, smooth cut. The best type of pruning saw is one with a strong steel back in which is mounted a slender blade. This is very much like a hand saw, except that the pruning saw blade moves on a swivel at either end so it can be turned at any angle desired. This enables one to work the saw in angles between limbs.

Keep Orchard Clean.

Weeds and brush should always be kept cleaned away from the trees, as all such rubbish, straw, etc., will harbor mice and rabbits and invite them to taste the bark.

BETTER THAN ANY MEDIUMS

Mince Pie That Brought Vision of Home Caused Wounded Soldier to Long for Life.

Pie is not among the articles treated of in works on materia medica, but a recent incident shows that it may have therapeutic value. In a hospital lay an American sailor, for whom everything had been done by surgeons, doctors and nurses, and yet something was lacking. He was homesick; his mind was ever away in a little Atlantic coast town. One day, in the midst of his bodily pain and soul-suffering, there flashed upon him the object of his quest, and he murmured excitedly: "Oh, if I could only have a piece of mince pie." It was not that he wanted to eat a piece of pie, for he was too ill for that. His hunger was for what the pie represented. An American nurse who heard the wish managed, with some difficulty, to find all the ingredients for a real New England pie. When she took it to him she put with it a bit of cheese, also hard to procure in these times, so that nothing would be lacking, and in the cheese she planted a miniature Stars and Stripes. The poor boy could eat neither the pie nor the cheese, but they contributed just the home touch needed to improve his condition. When the wife of the American consul general visited him later she remarked upon the improvement in his condition, and he said: "Two days ago I was in such misery that I could have welcomed death. Now I feel that America is not so far away as I thought and that I have got to hang on."

GENERAL BELIEF IN HONESTY

Something Very Like the Millennium Seems to Be Near in Great British Metropolis.

How is the sudden trust Londoners have come to exhibit for each other to be accounted for? There is an extreme shortage of copper coins for small change in London, and one man says of his experiences: "On several occasions lately news vendors who have been unable to change silver have said to me: 'Never mind, pay me the next time you are this way.' Only one of them knew me as a regular customer. Even more unexpected credit than this was offered me at a railway booking office where I tendered a shilling for a two-penny fare. 'I'm short of coppers,' said the girl booking clerk, 'pay me tomorrow.' 'But I shall not be here tomorrow,' I replied. 'Then pay me the next time you are here, whenever it is,' she said. 'But supposing I forget,' I expostulated. 'Oh, I know that you will come and pay me some day,' she answered. 'I've never known people fail.' Similar testimony is offered by others, who tell of copper credit thrust upon them by strangers, and often very poor and humble strangers.—London Mail.

Clearing Up After War.

On the banks of the Thames, less than twenty miles from London, there is an American town of the mushroom kind such as you might find in a new California oil field. Its population consists of more than 200 white men and about 150 negroes. It covers twenty-five acres which nine months ago were fallow grass land. The business of the town is to receive, sort and store war material. There is a street of wooden huts, another of corrugated iron huts, huge iron store sheds a quarter of a mile long, office buildings, water supply and electric lights, the whole surrounded by a hedge, a few armed sentries and much mud. All day long the khaki-clad negroes push and haul railway trucks full of war material.

War material coming back from Russia is being stored at this camp, also the fittings of the dismantled hospitals which the American army established in England.

Warmth Increases Oil Flow.

An electrical method of carrying warmth to the bottom of oil wells has been found in many cases greatly to increase the flow of oil. The heating process, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, decreases the viscosity of the oil, usually occasioned by the admission of air to the well and the cooling of the rock bed. Minute crevices and capillary channels which afford easy passage to warm, thin oil become quite impassable if the oil gums. The electric heating method not only thins the oil but often generates gas whose pressure helps the oil to the surface. The system found military use in the abandoned oil fields of Roumania and Galicia.

What's in a Name?

Most readers are familiar with the story of the German bank in a United States city which, finding its name unpopular, changed it to the "Sherman bank." Here is another example on the same lines: A popular New York city German restaurant was called the Kloster Glocke (Cloister Bell), and its front was decorated with a large bell as a sign. The name has been changed to the "Liberty Bell," and the bell of the old monastery now does duty as a replica of the one which rang out independence to the colonies.

Doubts Mechanical Skill.

A "prominent business man" has offered $50,000 for the privilege of being carried as mechanic on the first transatlantic flight made in an airplane. If this offer is accepted, it is to be hoped that his mechanical ability equals his enthusiasm.—Springfield Republican.

LUXURY IN EARLY TRAVEL

"Safety Barges" Instituted for Those Who Feared Hazard of Voyage on Hudson River.

The frequency with which boilers blew up on the early Hudson river boats led to the use of what were known as "safety barges," and these, in their day, were considered the utmost luxury in travel, comparable to the private cars of the magnates of today. The barges were boats with main and upper decks and were almost as large as the steamers which towed them. The rubble rode on the steamers, inhaled the smells of the kitchen and the freight holds, endured the noise of the engines, and took the chances of explosions, while on the barges behind the elite traveled in luxurious state. Food was brought from the boat kitchen to the barge saloon over a swaying bridge between the vessels and was served with great aplomb under the direction of the barge captain, who was a noble figure in the setting.

The upper decks of the barges were canopied and decked with flowers, with promenades and easy chairs from which to view the scenery. At night the interiors were transformed into sleeping accommodations much the same as a modern Pullman, except that they were more commodious. Not the least attractive feature of these barges, according to a chronicler of their excellence, was "an elegant bar, most sumptuously supplied with all that can be desired by the most fastidious and thirsty."

Recent news dispatches which tell of plans to establish floating cafes on the ocean just outside the three-mile territorial limit when the nation goes dry, indicate that luxurious floating establishments somewhat similar to these "safety barges" may again come into use.

SCIENTIST TELLS OF TRIUMPH

Professor Claims to Have Perfected System for Underground and Submarine Messages.

Speaking recently of his work for the navy, Prof. James R. Rogers, the inventor of a wireless system for underground and submarine transmission, stated: "Six or seven years ago, I began experiments with the transmission of electric impulses by the ground. They were renewed during the war with the audion bulb, which renders the receiving apparatus more sensitive. I first established contact with nearby points and before long received with perfect distinctness impulses sent from Europe. I placed my antennae in trenches radiating from a center and pointing by the compass toward the distant station from which I wished to receive. I demonstrated to the navy department that eight operators may receive at once from eight separate wires. My system was installed at New Orleans, the Great Lakes station, and Belmar, N. Y., and is now used at the principal wireless stations in the United States. I have found the best results with my wires buried six feet below the surface in damp ground. Some of my experiments were conducted in water 25 to 50 feet deep."—Scientific American.

Monkey as Labor Possibility.

The pig-tailed orangutan or brook of the Malays is a highly intelligent animal, and the Malays train them to pick coconuts. The despatcher is described by R. W. C. Sherriff in "A Naturalist in Borneo." A cord is fastened round the monkey's waist and it is led to the coconut palm, which it rapidly climbs. Then the monkey holds of a nut, and if the owner judges the fruit to be ripe, it shouts to the monkey. With their twists the nut round and round till the stalk is broken and it falls to the ground. If the monkey holds a hold of an unripe fruit the owner tugs the cord and the monkey tugs another. I have seen a brook act as a very efficient fruit-picker, although the use of the cord was dispensed with altogether, the monkey being guided by the tones and inflections of his master's voice.

Timely Suggestion.

A Brooklyn lady who bought some get-rich-while-you-sleep oil and mining stock recently, is now just too provoked for anything because she didn't examine the shares more closely. Some of them are red, some yellow and some green. She tried to paper her kitchen walls with them after the president of the company disappeared, but the artistic effect was not satisfactory.

In doing your spring shopping for worthless securities, insist on getting stock certificates that harmonize in color. Then you can use them for decorative purposes after the company goes to the wall.

An old piano box covered with the shares of deceased corporations makes a pretty good clothes press, provided the stock matches nicely in shade and texture. Persons who are color blind should be extremely cautious with their wild-cat investments these days.—Thrift Magazine.

Predictions Near Fulfillment.

Napoleon prophesied at St. Helena that there would be no kings in Germany a century after his death. Ten years before the Paris broke loose, Lord Roberts predicted that if a great European war came in our days, Ferdinand would be then an unknown officer who would be one of the most famous names in it.

A rather poor prediction was made as far back as 1896 by the redoubtable Frenchman, Henri Rochford, marquis and ambassador.

"We cannot let Alsace-Lorraine back by ourselves," he told an interviewer. "But one day the German eagle will set forth with pride and will attack the British bulldog. Then the bulldog will form an alliance with us to kill the eagle, and we shall recover the lost provinces."—London Answers.

Rules.

1. The contestants will be seated. Each one will stand when the Pronouncer gives the word, will repeat the word, spell it and then resume his seat.
2. If a contestant is not certain of the pronunciation of the word he may request that it be again pronounced.
3. In Part I the "1000 words" will be used. In Part II a new list of words will be used. Part II will continue until only one contestant remains, who will be declared the champion speller in Adams county.
4. In Part I words that have been misspelled will be dropped.
5. In Part II if a contestant misspells a word that word will be given to the next contestant, and so on until spelled correctly. If all fail, another word will be given to the next contestant and so on until spelled correctly. If all fail, another word will be given to all who failed. When the contestants have been reduced to two, and one fails, the word must be spelled by the remaining one. If neither can spell the word another will be given, and the spelling continue until one is able to spell a word that the other cannot spell.
6. In case of doubt as to whether a word has been correctly spelled the judges may require the contestant to repeat it.
7. The following is a list of pupils, arranged by districts, who were successful in making the required average in the 1919 District Spelling Contest and are accordingly entitled to enter the County Contest, at Gettysburg, April 19, 1919.

Think This Over

The investment of Funds and care of these investments are always difficult problems for the average individual.

Why not create a trust which can provide for the payment of income to you during life and designate the disposition of property after your death. Or which may be so drawn that in case of need through illness or unexpected misfortune the principal may be drawn on for that purpose.

In this way the aged are relieved of the care and investment of funds, which is always a difficult matter for persons who are not physically strong.

The laws of Pennsylvania guard well funds placed in the hands of Trust Companies of the state.

THE CITIZEN'S TRUST COMPANY OF GETTYSBURG stands ready to assume these cares and responsibilities for you.

PLAYGROUND DRIVE IS ON

$4000 For Up-to-Date Equipment.

At a meeting of the Kurtz Memorial Playground Association called last Friday evening for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year Rev. Paul Reid Pontius was elected President of the association, succeeding T. J. Winbrenner. Rev. Pontius, pastor of the Trinity Reformed Church is chairman of the committee making the drive for $4000 for the playground and is greatly interested in developing the playground.

Other officers elected were Vice Presidents, Mrs. Donald P. McPherson, and Harry B. Sefton; Treasurer, Mark K. Eckert, and Secretary, Walter D. Reynolds. The officers constitute the Executive Committee.

President Pontius appointed Mark Eckert, Father Boyle, J. E. Musselman, Allan B. Plank, Walter D. Reynolds, and H. B. Sefton as the Finance Committee. Grounds and Amusement Committee is composed of Mrs. Donald McPherson, W. D. Reynolds, A. B. Plank, Mrs. Wayne Sefton, Mrs. Wm. Arch. McClean, T. J. Winbrenner, and Wm. D. Gilbert.

The children of the town made a demonstration by a parade last Saturday evening that they wanted money for the playground. The parade was led by the new Gettysburg Band in uniform and was made up of boys and girls of the High and Grade Schools, and was highly creditable showing for a demonstration prepared in two days' time. A number of the pupils were in athletic dress and carried baseball bats, tennis racquets and other play articles. The children have put the emphasis on the declaration that there are no reasons why they should not have a larger equipped playground.

The Drive for the Playground is now on in dead earnest. Thursday, Friday and Saturday are the days for the house to house canvass. The town has been divided into small districts, so that it can be quickly and thoroughly covered. It has been said that if every household would donate $1 for each member that the drive would go over the top for the amount asked.

The amount asked is really a modest sum, for there are many communities, up-to-date and progressive and no larger than our own, having play houses for the children on playgrounds, with floor for community singing, roller skating, plays, folk-dancing, concerts and other activities. It would be a fitting opportunity for some public spirited citizen to donate such a playhouse and let all the other proceeds go toward the other improvements.

Turnpike Wanted Abolished.

The County Commissioners on Tuesday held sessions with two delegations on the question of purchase of old toll roads and removal of toll gates.

A large delegation from McSherrystown appeared and urged the purchase of the toll road between McSherrystown and Hanover, about 2 1/2 miles, with about two-thirds located in Adams county. The turnpike company was represented by C. J. Delone and asked $18,600. With one-third to be paid by York county and State would leave $12,000 to be paid for this end of the pike, and the price being divided between county and State on a fifty-fifty basis would make a bill for the county to pay of about $6,000. Likely the price would stand some cutting down.

The passing of the toll road and the one toll gate between McSherrystown and Hanover would get rid of a nuisance.

The Lethers town delegation asked the Commissioners to take steps to get rid of the Hanover and Littlestown turnpike, of about seven miles, and about two-thirds in this county. This pike is a well traveled road, probably as largely traveled by county people as any road, through a thickly settled district. We are in an age where the quicker these turnpike routes are retired the better.

The County Commissioners after hearing the delegations passed the following resolution: "That the County Commissioners of Adams County request the State Highway Commissioner to instruct his engineer to secure estimates of value of the McSherrystown-Hanover, the Littlestown-Hanover, and the East Berlin and Hanover turnpikes. To also secure prices asked by the owners of these roads with a view of joining with the State in their purchase and freeing them of toll and that the State Highway Commissioner, upon securing this information, will set a date to meet the Adams County Commissioners to confer on the estimates and prices."

Owners Are Better Guides than Specifications

Nothing our salesmen can say about the Willys-Knight motor car can be as convincing as the statements of Willys-Knight owners. The man who had driven a Willys-Knight car thousands of miles becomes so enthusiastic over the sleeve-valve motor that he is rarely ever content until he prevails upon his friends to profit by his experience. The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor is so ungrudging and unflagging in its performance that it has come to be known as the motor that always runs. DAY HONORED BY WELSHMEN
 March the First Known the World Over as Anniversary of the Country's Patron Saint.

The first day of March has long been observed as a special day by the people of Wales and is called St. David's day in honor of the good St. David, patron saint of the Welsh, who lived in the sixth century.

St. David was said to have been the son of a prince of Cardiganshire, Wales, and is accredited with the working of many miracles, especially among the poor of the country. It was said that when the saint first went into the fields to preach to his followers the ground on which he was standing began to rise until it assumed a goodly height, and henceforth was his pulpit.

For hundreds of years the Welsh wore sprigs of leek—a plant with broad bluish-green leaves and yellow flower clusters—in their hats as a symbol of recognition of the day. This custom was brought about, some say, from the fact that in a battle of the Welsh against their old enemies, the Saxons, St. David had ordered all Welshmen to go into battle wearing their native leek, not only to distinguish them from their enemies, but to bring them good luck.

Other writers argue that the badge was worn more as a fraternal sign and because leek was grown in every Welsh garden and was the favorite vegetable of a true Welshman.

Writers of the last century depict a typical Welsh garden as a garden of onions, garlic and leek. Homely incidents are told of Welshmen assisting each other in farming and eating their leeks together, a ceremony symbolic of hospitality and good fellowship.

NOT ALWAYS PROPERLY SANE
 Scientists Assert Few People Have at All Times Full Command of Their Mental Faculties.

Many people think that the expression "temporary insanity" is merely used by a jury wishing to save relatives pain, but numbers of doctors who have made a study of mental disorders emphatically declare it is no idle term.

One doctor has stated that temporary insanity is a condition of double consciousness, not dissimilar to epilepsy. A person normally quite sane may have attacks of temporary aberration lasting little more than a few minutes, especially after long bouts of hard, continuous mental work, being particularly liable if insomnia supervenes.

Crimes have been committed in the early morning when the perpetrator has not really been properly awake, and has been horrified to find what he has done. This is a true case of temporary insanity, but it is comparatively rare, and a man in normal health would not suffer in this way.

A specialist in mental diseases has stated that he knew a case in which a person was insane during a certain time of each day, and that others have been known when the patient was quite normal at ordinary times, but suffered from a temporary fit of mania regularly once a month.

Forming Artificial Pearls.
 Pearls were valuable as gems in China as early as twenty-two centuries before our era, and the Chinese had worked out a plan for the artificial formation of pearls about 700 years ago, which they have carried on extensively. Large numbers of oysters are collected and the shell gently opened to allow the introduction of various foreign substances which are inserted by means of a forked bamboo stick. These pellets are generally made of prepared mud, but may be bone, brass or wood. The oysters are then placed in shallow ponds connected with canals and are nourished by tubs of night soil thrown in from time to time.

Some time later, from several months to two years, depending upon the size of the gem desired, these oysters are taken out of the shell, the pearls removed and the body of the animal eaten as food. Millions of such pearls are sold annually in China. The most valuable are either round or pear shaped.

Few Old People in New Guinea.
 The average duration of life is shorter in New Guinea than in any other country, owing to the peculiar diet of the natives, who devour with gusto the larvae of beetles, dug out of decayed tree trunks, and habitually drink seawater when near the coast. "The people die off at about forty," A. E. Pratt says in his "Two Years Among the Cannibals of New Guinea." "We saw one very old man, who may have been about sixty years of age—the only example of longevity that we came across. He was bent almost double, and had a long, white beard. His fellow tribesmen regarded him as a great curiosity, and brought him to see us. Despite the decrepitude of his body, however, there was no trace of senility; his senses were unimpaired, and the poor old creature showed great gratitude for a gift of tobacco."

Men's Full Dress.
 Will the returned soldiers who are said to be ordering colored evening suits be strong enough to overthrow the black tradition established by Lord Lytton?

Very few, perhaps, of those who for 90 years have meekly bowed to that tradition, have known its origin, says the London Chronicle. Until the publication of "Pelham" coats worn for evening dress were of different colors, chiefly brown, green or blue, but the novelist makes one of his female characters tell the hero a blue coat does not suit his complexion. "You look best in black," she says, "which is a great compliment, for people must be very distinguished in appearance to do so." And forthwith all men chose to take the compliment to themselves.

Some Doubt About It.
 One of our good housekeepers knows she has no ear for music, but when she is hustling around her pots and pans and scrubbing and washing out tea towels she cannot constrain humming a bit just out of her cleaning-up joy. Now there is also a little neighbor boy who plays under her window. Once, while the process of scrubbing was going on above, the little fellow looked up to the window with a face all puckered and serious, as if some question had been troubling him for quite a while.

"Well, Toby, what's the matter?" inquired the housekeeper.

A long pause—then, "Please ma'am is you singing?"—Indianapolis News.

Loaded Cigars.
 Around the hotels of San Francisco patrons are warned to be on the lookout for the old trick of the loaded cigar. Some inventive genius has put out one that contains fireworks and when it begins to shoot the air is filled with set pieces representing men on horseback, French trenches, and the retreat of the Huns. W. H. Harl, financier and investor of Helena, Mont., avers that these things are true and that he saw a parade of wonderful pictures when a friend slipped him one of the cigars in the lobby of the Palace last week. He says that cigar produced the entire battle of Chateau-Thierry before he could smother it.—Oregonian.

Incomprehensibility.
 "There's some misunderstanding about bolshevists."
 "They discuss their affairs largely in the most difficult language on earth; Russian, and I translate Russian at that. Misunderstand?—it's inevitable."

Burgundy at Its Best.
 Burgundy wines of 1915 are reported by the most eminent connoisseurs of Paris to be the best since 1865. In fact their verdict is "perfect."

The summer of 1915 was hot, so was the autumn, with light rains now and again at exactly the right intervals. M. Mathieu, celebrated savant on the subject of wines, writes: "Since 1865 there has been no Burgundy like that of 1915 in delicacy or strength. The 1915 vintage is a remarkable synthesis of bouquet, aroma, body and flavor."

Less Crime, Fewer Carpets.
 There does not at first glance seem to be much connection between crime and carpets, says the London Daily Mail, but it is a fact that the decrease in crime brought about in India, as elsewhere, by the war has led to a decrease in the supply of Indian carpets. The reason is that most of these carpets, especially the finer and more expensive kinds, are made by convicts, notably in the great jail at Poona.

They are made entirely by hand, so it is a case of few convicts few carpets.

Hard to Distinguish.
 "In Shakespeare's day the liver was thought to be the seat of love."
 "Maybe the Elizabethans were not so far wrong, after all. The symptoms of love and an acute bilious attack are very similar."

Jerry Truesdale's Valentine

By BARBARA KERR

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Plump Mrs. Augustus Truesdale was on her knees digging industriously into the contents of the old relic trunk which she had drawn from the closet. "What are you doing, mother? Let me get it," begged her daughter Constance, coming into the room. "You'll hurt your knee knee."

"Never mind, Connie, you just wait a minute and give me a hand when I go to get up. The least romantic thing in the world is this rheumatic wing that gets my knee. There, I've found it." And she slipped something hastily into the folds of a newspaper and closed the trunk.

It was a good old trunk, covered with horsehide, the hairy side out, and studded with brass nails. She pulled it affectionately in memory of the children who had ridden it astride to market so many times.

Connie smiled. "It's a good old go-by yet, isn't it, mother?" And she traced a hand to help her mother to her feet.

"Yes, but leave it where it is. Father hasn't seen go-by for a long time." And Connie knew that her mother was setting the stage for something of other for her father's benefit. "Why, there's go-by! I thought the old trunk had gone to the ash-heap years ago. What a clatter the kids made riding it to the races," mused Judge Truesdale later in the day as he gazed reminiscently at it. "It shows the mark of Buster's heels, doesn't it? But what is the idea, mother, going on a journey?"

"Yes, just traveling a bit back into yesteryear," smiled his wife. And she put the object of her quest into his hands.

"Well, well! And you've kept that all these years! You know that old valentine set me back some weeks' wages when I bought it—let's see—thirty-five years ago!"

"It was the prettiest and most expensive that Job Wright had in his store," boasted Mrs. Truesdale proudly.

"Yes, I thought it just the thing to send you my heart on this blue satin pillow—looks a bit faded, doesn't it? But then you haven't frayed my heart very much—so out with it. What are you going to strike your husband for this time?"

"It is annoying to have one's deepest spots read like an open book. Now, Gus, you never let me spring the jack-in-the-box at you; you give one look at the outside and demand that he come forth. Well, it's about Buster."

"Buster is some boy—but why doesn't he come? What does he want?" "No, not so fast, dear; he doesn't know about this. I wanted to tell you a little story and then draw a moral for you." And she propped the blue pillow up by her desk calendar and pushed her husband into her easy chair. "Last week, when you were gone and those cases were called in the supreme court, and had to be handled by your son, one of the justices in speaking of his success paid him a mighty fine compliment."

"Yes, I know," interrupted the judge proudly; "he said that Jerry Truesdale had not had his genius hopelessly cramped by being in with his father, and that he was going to be a better lawyer even than the old judge—was a better pleader right now." Her husband laughed indulgently. "Now, you go ahead and point the moral that should adorn that pretty tale."

Mrs. Truesdale tried to make a wry face at him but it would overflow with maternal pride in spite of herself. "Well, you know that you have often remarked that it is a pity that young men have to be overshadowed by their fathers and that if a father is not mighty careful he can blight the son's prospects."

"You don't think, do you, mother, that Jerome feels blighted? Do you?" asked the judge solemnly.

"Well, no," hesitated his wife. "He has never said a word. He has always given you all credit for the help you've been and for starting him ahead in his profession. Just the other day he was comparing his business with that of one of the other boys who had no one to boost him."

"Then what's the trouble?" urged the judge impatiently.

"No trouble, father, at all. But you see, Buster is now past the place where he needs boosting. What he needs is a free rein and the entire responsibility of the office."

"Oh, going to ask your husband to retire, eh? Think I'm getting too old—"

"No, no! Never! No retirement for you; just a change of occupation—a little rest—" She whirled the calendar around so he could see the date—February 14. "Give Buster a valentine; make over to him the active practice and you get out of doors and look after your investments. Put him on his mettle. Why, he'll want to be getting married some of these days. We're needing grandchildren right now, so we'll not be so silly over the dog. Please, Gus—it will add ten years to your life! You need a little play spell. You've earned it."

"Well, now," argued the judge in his best judicial manner, "if the court grants plaintiff's plea there will have to be some consideration, to be agreed upon, to wit: Will the imploring, pleading plaintiff agree to set rid of her rheumatism and take care of herself, so that she will be able to play with me? If I add those ten years to my life I must stipulate that they be the best yet."

Connie, who couldn't resist listening to the conversation, heard a gurgle and her father's voice pleading for mercy—"You've broken up a dollar's worth of cigars, mother, with that bear hug of yours—shall I write the valentine to Buster?"

Then they both smiled. They heard him coming up the stairs two steps at a time, whistling. He pushed the door open. "Hello, what's the fam, conclave? Why, there's go-by. Come, Con, let's trot, trot to Boston." And gathering up his sister, he sat her before him on the old trunk, while he made the galloping noise with his heels to the tune of the old nursery rhyme. Then he spied the old valentine. "Give it to me! I never did get to hold it in my hands as long as I wanted to. You were some say young buck in those days—eh, judge? Is this what landed our old girl? Well, say, I sent a valentine, too, today."

"Oh, you did, did you? You young cub!" grinned his father. "Well, mother and I were just getting out another valentine," and he handed it to his son.

Sobriety Jerry got up, took the paper, rather puzzled. "Why—why, you old scouts, do you mean it? Why, I don't deserve it. Read it, Con. Say that's the best poetry I ever read. That sixth line—" gathering up his hat. "It beats mine all hollow. I'll just go and read it to her. It makes my case a little more definite and certain." He was gone, and this was what he read to her:

"To Jerome Truesdale—On this date Your mother made me abdicate. It's yours, with this request a lien: Just keep the name and record clean. So now, young man, go stirle your gait; Get some nice girl to share your fate. If you want advice from mom or dad You're free to come and ask it, lad."

EDISON'S VOICE IN RECORDS

Inventor of Phonograph, for the First Time, Makes Short Speech Which Will Be Preserved.

Thomas A. Edison, who invented the phonograph 42 years ago, has for the first time consented to have his own voice recorded on a phonograph record. The reproduction, which is on the back of a record containing the national anthems of our allies, was heard recently for the first time in the Edison laboratory at Orange, N. J.

Mr. Edison celebrated his 72nd birthday on February 11. The talk, which is Mr. Edison's first comment about the war since America entered the fight, follows:

"Our boys made good in France. The word 'American' has a new meaning in Europe. Our soldiers have made it mean courage, generosity, self-restraint and modesty. We are proud of the North Americans who risked their lives for the liberty of the world, but we must not forget, and we must not permit demagogues to belittle the part played by our gallant allies. Their casualty lists tell the story."

"However proud we may be of our own achievements, let us remember always that the war could not have been won if the Belgians, British, French and Italians had not fought like bull-dogs in the face of overwhelming odds. The great war will live vividly in the minds of Americans for the next 100 years. I hope that when we do reverence to the memory of our brave boys who fell in France we shall not forget their brothers in arms who wore the uniforms of our allies."

"I believe that the national airs of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium should for all time to come be as familiar to us as our own 'Star-Spangled Banner.'"

BRIDAL FLOWERS HERE AGAIN

That Orange Blossoms Are in the Market is a Sure Harbinger of World Peace.

One interesting sign of the coming of peace has been the reappearance of real orange blossoms at weddings. During the war they were difficult to obtain, owing to the fact that they come as a rule from France. Nearly all the orange flowers which are used at smart marriages in London and Paris are grown in the sheltered valleys of the Alps Maritimes behind the Riviera.

Here there are orchards of orange trees scattered over the sunny slopes, and the local peasantry devote most of their time to growing the beautiful flowers. No attempt is made to get the fruit, seeing that the orange trees are solely cultivated for the sake of the glistening blossoms.

A large part of the floral crop finds its way to the perfume factories of Grasse, but the choicest sprays are picked for the London and Paris markets. Orange flowers keep fresh for a considerable time, and they stand the journey to England very well, arriving in perfect condition.—London News.

Kangaroo Scored Knockout.

"Ned Kelly, the old buck kangaroo, has been having a fight with the boss star of the axis deer herd," said Sergeant McGee of the San Francisco park police. "And it is the first time I ever heard of two herbivorous animals so widely different in species finding common ground for a quarrel."

"As a matter of fact, it was the axis deer that started the trouble. He was trying to show off before the does and started butting at poor old Ned Kelly who was peacefully lolloping about with no thought for trouble. The first butt of the deer set Ned thinking, the second set him mad, the third—well, Ned Kelly just turned about and gave the axis deer one wallop under the stomach with its tail. You could hear the smack five blocks away, and it simply knocked the deer flat. It dropped as if it had been shot, while Ned Kelly just hopped away as happy as a bird."

One Thing More.

A pretty girl flattered over to a neighbor's house Sunday last to borrow some writing paper. She had an important letter to write and mail, and she was out of stationery. About half an hour later she returned for an envelope, and a little later still came back for a stamp. "Well, I hope that's all she wants to borrow today," said the disgruntled neighbor woman as she slammed the door after the pretty girl. "She needs a little 'spit' to make the stamp adhere," said the neighbor woman's husband, "and she'll be over after that in a minute."—Arkansas Thomas Cat (Hot Springs, Ark.).

Unduly Apprehensive.

"I hope they'll make some exceptions in taxing luxuries," remarked the plain person. "Are you expecting to be hit?" "I might be. One of the greatest luxuries I know of is sitting around the house in my shirt sleeves and reading the paper."
